By JOEL WESTBROOK

EVERY good Boy Scout is taught to believe that his organization was founded by Lord Baden-Powell. Yesterday the 86-year-old ex-mayor of New Braunfels, C. A. Jahn, challenged this English origin. In 1862, according to Jahn, while the Civil War was raging, two companies of more than one hundred schoolboys were organized and drilled in New Braunfels as "boy scouts." Each boy had a fifty-four-inch wooden rifle. One of the first settlers of New Braunfels, William Seekatz, was their instructor. Jahn's statement was affirmed by a number of the original scouts, among them 83-year-old ex-State Senator Ferdinand Weibert of Seguin.

Even more interesting than the claim of "first" is the implication that military ardor burned so hotly then in the Southern States that schoolboys were trained for service in the field. Historians will remember that many Confederate soldiers were in their early teens and that the Confederacy had one fourteen-year-old brigadier-general, John Kelly of Mississippi.

In addition to their expected recommendation for Federal wage and hour legislation, the Council for Industrial Progress yesterday in Washington adopted three other essential policies. These were: An economy of abundance as opposed to all theories of scarcity (with exceptions in case of "emergency"), stronger "fair trade practice" legislation, and the establishment of a permanent economic advisory council with equal representation of labor and management.

THE British government found time yesterday in the midst of its "constitutional crisis" to briefly and regretfully inform the United States government that it could not meet its latest war-debt payment, about which we had sent a courteously worded reminding note. And so... the five billion dollars plus continues to stay on the cuff.

WITHIN the past two or three years a number of cities have attempted to solve their parking problem by the installation of parking meters. Some cities have found the extra revenue very helpful and have been delighted with the scheme's success. But in the rapidly-growing West Texas city of Lubbock more than twenty business men yesterday posted a $5,000 bond in connection with an injunction suit for discontinuance of the meters.

WHEN Governor James V. Allred yesterday declined to comment on the reports that he would offer Jack Chevigny a State of Texas appointment, it was widely inferred that the Governor will do exactly that.

ENGLAND'S new King is George VI. He has chosen this title out of respect to his father, the late George V. Although his first name is Albert, he decided against it because Queen Victoria so idolized her consort of this name that she expressed a wish that no future king would bear the same title.

Thus England and the British Empire have once more emerged from one of the most serious crises in modern times. The Empire emerged victorious and strengthened. That the King is a servant of the people and must follow the mandate of his ministers at all times has been clearly established once more by this rather tragic struggle between a King who thought he should be allowed to do as he pleased with his personal life and a cabinet that believed his personal life and actions are of the utmost concern to everyone in the British Empire.

The new King has a most difficult job ahead of him, for he must rebuild the prestige of the throne, a throne that has stood in the mind of the average British citizen as a symbol of unity and solidarity. He must work hard, and above all he must follow in the footsteps of his father, the late King George V, now considered the ideal of British Kingship. Mr. Baldwin, as the representative of the government and of what the government stands for in England, is also in danger of losing his political influence.

Whether he will be forced to resign in the near future will depend largely on his doings and sayings during the next week or so. See PERSPECTIVE, page 2

Duke of York To Take Oath As King Today

Ex-King Edward Relinquishes Crown And Royal Estates; Houses Consent

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(INS)—The young Duke of Norfolk, Premier Peer of England and hereditary Earl Marshall, and Ramsey MacDonald, Lord President of the Privy Council today sped preparations for the pomp and panoply of a new royal accession.

The Duke of York became king when Parliament passed the abdication bill, but he will take his oath at a meeting of the Privy Council Saturday in St. James's Palace.

Around noon Saturday the ancient heralding ceremony of proclaiming George VI king will take place at St. James's, Charing Cross, Temple Bar, and the Royal Exchange.

Saturday afternoon the houses of Parliament will take their oaths of allegiance to the new king. Monday, his 41st birthday, George VI will send a message to Parliament, and the houses will move an address in reply.

Coronation May 12

The coronation will take place as scheduled for Edward, May 12. The arrival of George VI's birthday so soon after his accession, however, cancels the colorful military display of the trooping of the color, annually held on the King's birthday.

Stripped of his titles of nobility and his income from the royal estates, Edward VIII receded into private life Friday. In proceedings that lasted for less than four hours from start to conclusion, Edward's abdication to enable his marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore became final, binding and irrevocable, and Britain was launched on a new regime pledged to conservatism, simplicity and respect for the traditions of centuries.

Edward ceased to be King at 7:52 o'clock (C.S.T.) when the clerk of Parliament announced the royal assent had been given to the abdication bill that had been rushed through three readings in the House of Commons without division and passed by the House of Lords in six minutes.

Reign Ended

Two minutes earlier, the signatures that ended Edward's brief, uncrowned reign had been scratched on a page of parchment by the three members of the royal commission—Lord Onslow, Lord Denman, and the Earl of Stanhope.

In moving the final reading of the abdication bill, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin spoke gravely and with deep feeling of the end of Edward's brief but colorful reign.

"Edward," he said, "will cease to be King in a few short hours. His assent to this bill will be the last act of his reign. We shall always remember with regard and affection his whole-hearted and loyal service both as Prince of Wales and King. For all his work we are grateful. We shall not forget."

Nunnally's Condition Now Favorable

The Daily Texan stated in the headline Wednesday concerning E. L. Nunnally, ex-student of the University and registrar of San Angelo Junior College, that he had recovered from his leg injury. Mr. Nunnally was injured last week while in Richmond attending a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools when he slipped on an icy sidewalk and broke his leg. His condition is now favorable enough that he has been moved to his home in San Angelo, according to information received by E. J. Mathews, registrar of the University.

THIEVES ROB 4 STUDENTS

Thieves raided a rooming house for men at 1916 Speedway early Friday morning and stole valuables from four students. Gerald S. Livengood of Bay City lost a watch valued at $20 and Carey Hight and James Hunt, students from Mexia, lost watches valued at $4 each. The thieves ransacked several rooms and stole miscellaneous articles of clothing belonging to Robert Collier, Wichita Falls student. Police were investigating Friday.

The Junior League charity ball will be held December 12 at the Driskill Hotel. Dinner will be served until 10:30 o'clock and Ben Young's orchestra will play. A nautical theme will be carried out in the floor show beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

The Junior Naval Militia, under Ernest Kennedy, will open the show. Musical numbers will be given by Newton Sanford and company and a men's chorus directed by J. Campbell Wray. Jack McWilliams and the chorus will sing "Adoramus" and "Cossack Love Song."

Andrew Porter and Dorothy Heierman will dance an adagio, Don Smith will sing "Rolling Down to Rio" Jimmy Green. "When My Ships Come Sailing Home"; Malcolm Gregory, "Stout-hearted Men"; and John Peninger, "South Sea Island Magic." They will be assisted by choruses of men and girls. Val Jean Aldred, who sang the leading role in "The Bohemian Girl," will also sing.

The grand finale, with the entire group taking part, will be "Red Sails in the Sunset," led by Miss Annabelle Murray.

The charity ball, sponsored by the Settlement Club and the Austin Junior League, is given to raise funds for the support of the Settlement Home.

Oil Well Students Study Coast Rigs

Thirty-five petroleum production engineering students left early Friday morning for Corpus Christi to study oil well rigs and equipment. Representatives of two oil companies will accompany the group Saturday morning.

Dr. G. H. Fancher and H. H. Power, professors of petroleum production engineering, are conducting the field trip.

'Math and Aristotle Won't Aid Students Facing Problems,' Economist Says

Dr. R. H. Montgomery, professor of economics in the University, advised the national convention of the Association of College Unions that unlimited freedom of discussion was necessary if students were to be educated toward democratic government at the fourth official business session Friday afternoon.

"We must present the problems of the modern world to train students to meet present day social and economic problems," Dr. Montgomery said. "Teaching them Aristotle or higher mathematics won't do it."

The University professor declared that the students must be interested with practical problems, and that once they are interested their discussion, even of international revolutions, should not be censored.

To Train Leaders

"Nine-tenths of the students who graduate from the colleges and universities represented here will be the leaders of their respective communities. It is our duty to train them properly."

Dr. Montgomery turned his speech into an open discussion and answered numerous questions. Unions, he said, should be open to discussions of any subject by groups of students.

Control of such meetings should be by college authorities and not the Union managers, thereby saving the managers some embarrassment. He suggested that the meetings be held by recognized organizations permitting everyone to attend.

At the morning session T. M. Rehder of Iowa State and W. W. Winkler of Wisconsin University presented the directors' and students' "Attitudes Toward the Union and What Determines Them."

Mr. Rehder, a director, declared that the definite purposes and policies of the Union may be destroyed by unfriendly and unjust criticisms.

Inclusive Program Urged

"No single interest or group may be patronized unduly without creating bad feeling, and the program should include all types of students," the Iowan said.

A Union depends primarily on personal contacts, and it is imperative to have an interested staff with high standards, because student workers help mould outside opinions, Mr. Rehder pointed out.

Winkler said that a balanced variety of facilities, a compulsory membership fee, prices below or on parity with those charged at other community establishments, student direction of the Union, a sympathetic staff, a correctly-informed campus paper, and an interested faculty were the policies creating favorable regard of the Unions.

"Misinformation and misstatement of fact, deliberate or ignorant, are two effective weapons used by critics, and the harm is done before the proper authorities can bring forth correct information," the Wisconsin delegate said.

Wisconsin Complaints

He outlined the complaints of Wisconsin students concerning the Union, and said they could be See MONTGOMERY, page 3

Meroff Replaced By Hubert For Tonight's Dance

Because of a misunderstanding between Benny Meroff and the management of the Texas Union, Meroff will not play for the all-University dance here tonight. Instead, Frank Hubert and his orchestra will furnish the music for this dance, which will be held at the Texas Union instead of Gregory Gymnasium as previously announced.

Meroff, who played here for the Valentine Dance last February, had been expected to reopen Gregory Gymnasium for dancing, but Friday afternoon he wired Charles Zivley, manager of the Texas Union, that he would be unable to come to Austin.

In answer to a query sent him by Mr. Zivley asking his reasons, Meroff stated that he would not have time to play here if he was to fulfill an engagement in Cincinnati December 14. Mr. Zivley said that Meroff then offered to play if he would be paid a sum two and a half times as much as that which the Union had expected to pay him.

After negotiations had fallen through, the dance committee of the Union made immediate efforts to contact another "known" orchestra, the committee even going as far as offering to pay plane expenses for orchestras from New York here. However, all orchestras contacted had previous engagements.

Mr. Zivley said that the sum asked by Meroff was the third-highest price that has ever been paid an orchestra by the University. It was exceeded only by that paid to Guy Lombardo and Wayne King, and was more than was paid Henry Busse, Gus Arnheim, Benny Goodman, Ted Fio Rito and Duke Ellington.

Union to Auction Lost Articles

Do you need a good raincoat, umbrella, fountain pen, pencil, or hat? If so, maybe you can find it at the Union auction sale, scheduled for next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the main lounge of the Texas Union.

Or maybe you can pick up something for that comic Christmas tree your club is having. Most of the articles that will be put on sale have been on hand at least six months, and a few for even a year. If the owner has not claimed his article by this time, it's to be auctioned.

Jim Langdon is the auctioneer. The money from the sales goes into the dance fund.

PROWLER TAKES $27

A prowler walked into the Kappa Alpha house Thursday night and took $27 belonging to various members. The front door was left open, and it is supposed that the thief entered there. No clues had been discovered Friday.

Solidarity Is New Chinese Spirit--Baker

Country Improves Military Strength, Protected By 600 Miles of Trenches

Striking the note of hope and solidarity, so characteristic of China's current national spirit, John Earl Baker, speaking in Hog Memorial Auditorium Friday morning, told of transportation, communication, and rural rehabilitation during the last five years in China.

Mr. Baker is vice-president and executive secretary of the Chinese International Famine Relief Commission and for twenty years has been adviser to the Chinese government on railways, finance, and famine relief. His talk on "Recent Developments in China" was sponsored by the Cultural Entertainment Committee.

North and South Join

With the development of the railways in China, there recently came the consolidation of North and South China, and the Cantonese army became a part of the Chinese forces. As these two sections are connected by rail, China now feels more able to handle her external relations, Mr. Baker explained.

"There comes a time when you are willing to sacrifice everything you have to preserve your self-respect; that time is fast approaching in China," declared Mr. Baker, speaking of Japanese aggression. The Chinese, moreover, are becoming more and more able to handle such aggression, he said.

Chinese Trenches

A champion of the Chinese cause of progress and of self-preservation, Mr. Baker told of the great 600-mile system of trenches which the Japanese will have to conquer before entering very far into China's interior, of the tremendous cost to the Japanese to take these trenches, and of the blow to Japanese trade which a war with its best customer would deal.

"Time works on the side of the Chinese," he said. "They are improving their poor military strength all along. Meanwhile something may happen in Japan—like the mutiny in the army last February."

Non-Militant Progress

The speaker also described some non-militant progress in China. Douglas bombers, with a speed of 240 miles an hour, are used for passenger planes, railway schedules have been improved, and See BAKER, page 2

University Actor In Benefit Play

The third-night run of the Austin High School benefit play, "Arms and the Man," in which John Connolly of the Curtain Club is playing, will start tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Austin High School.

Connolly's playing with the Austin High School Red Dragon players in "Arms and the Man" is an act of reciprocity for the work of James R. Burton as a guest director of the Curtain Club's play, "Biography." He takes the role of Captain Bluntschli, along with Alice Ann Nitschke, Red Dragon player, who plays Queen Regina.

Prentice David Hill, also of the Curtain Club, designed the sets for "Arms and the Man."

Proceeds from the play go to the Parent-Teachers Association.

Coach Reveals Plans, Ending Uncertainty As to Retention Here

Jack Chevigny is definitely out of the Texas athletic picture. This morning Governor James V. Allred will announce his appointment as chief of the legal staff of one of the state departments, and on February 12 the youthful "Happy Jack" will no longer be Longhorn coach. He will be following the law profession.

Brinkley Fight Did Not Involve Roach and Sands

Yesterday's report of the trouble between Nick Frankovic and Jimmie Brinkley mentioned the names of Joe Roach and Morris Sands.

Roach and Sands merely happened to be passing at the time and stopped in to see what was going on. Following the incident they both apologized to the student president on the part of the football team for what had occurred. It was not a concerted action of the whole team but merely individual action of the players involved.

Roach termed the incident "regrettable" and pointed out that, although the team felt Chevigny should have been retained, the boys did not feel that violence was necessary to express their resentment.

Coach Holds License

Chevigny, who was graduated from Notre Dame University with a bachelor of laws degree, has been working on his legal profession along with his coaching. During the summers he has practiced, having appeared before the Texas Railroad Commission several times. He holds a license to practice law in Texas.

After his college years as an all-American back, he served as assistant coach under Knute Rockne, came to St. Edward's University here, produced a championship team, and was hired by the University. His first year the Longhorns took second place in the conference, and the last two they have been in the cellar, this season sharing the place with Rice. Until February 1, he remains as football coach and director of athletics at $5,000 a year.

Opposition Outspoken

Opposition to his remaining on the Forty Acres another year was voiced early in the season when the Longhorns began losing conference games. Factions divided on the question, sports writers giving the controversy wide publicity. The first climax came with Chevigny's announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-appointment, and all was brought to a point with the disclosure of what had gone on at the Council meeting.

Who the next coach will be will not be made known until the Regents meet, probably after the first of the year, when they will vote on the candidates. No definite date has been set for this meeting.

Winston Gardner, senior journalism student, believes that King Edward's abdication is all right "if he's got a job." Gardner remarked that Mrs. Simpson is beautiful. "By jove," said Gardner, "but it ain't cricket!" Gus Levy, one of the Y.M.C.A. Freshman Fellowship Club sponsors, said, "I think he should have had his cake and eaten it, too."

To which Brian Coyne, senior journalism student, proffered: "You can't abdicate and eat it, too!"

King 'Foolish,' Wallie 'Clever,' Say Students

Student opinion concerning King Edward's announcement of abdicating the English throne varied on the campus as a roving reporter stalked in and out of buzzing groups, all pursuing the latest news carried by an afternoon paper. The question: What do you think of King Edward's abdication?

Jimmie Brinkley, president of the Students' Association, thought that King Edward was foolish.

"Nobody should abdicate," said Brinkley. "No, I'm not going to abdicate, contrary to Weldon Hart and notwithstanding!"

Buck McCasland, junior in the College of Arts and Sciences, believes that the king was justified in taking such action if he is in love with Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. "I sympathize with the King. Love comes first, although I hated to see him give up the Government Congress, expressed the opinion that King Edward's abdication will stir up unrest in England.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Pulliam, "I don't think his abdication will be the end of it. There will be a drastic change in the English form of government. It will either make the king's position stronger, or destroy it altogether."

A. D. Livingston, junior in the School of Business Administration, was cornered in the Library corridor. "I think he's given up a whole lot," said Livingston. "After the glamour and excitement wears off, the king may regret and Mrs.

Simpson may regret."

Playing ping pong in the Texas Union were found two board members of the Union. Gracieta Williams, graduate student, scored a point against Jimmie Pounds before she asked: "Did the king abdicate? Gosh, he must be powerfully romantic!" Pounds served an ace, then chimed in: "I think he's a darn fool. What's the score, Gracie? I think if he had stuck it out he could have had the crown and a wife. Your serve, Gracie."

"Well, I hated to see him do it," replied A. L. Pinkston, sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences, "but it's best for the Empire because people would look down on Mrs. Simpson. I would like to see the king fight it out with the ministers and the cabinet."

Who the next coach will be will not be made known until the Regents meet, probably after the first of the year, when they will vote on the candidates. No definite date has been set for this meeting.

The MARCH of SPORTS

By JOE BELLEN
Texas Sports Editor

ABOUT TIME

Subsidization of Southwest Conference athletes in the open, above board, will be brought up at the executive session of faculty representatives in Dallas today, says a report of the Associated Press.

It's about time. That there has been, especially in recent years, active bidding among the schools of the cream of the Southwest is not a secret. The University of Texas, being a State institution—and not having any such alumni and friends organized as other schools do to kick in the cash—has suffered, has landed in the bottom of the heap two years in succession.

WATCH TEXAS

If fans want thrills at the games, whether manufactured or real—if the schools want to use the football teams for publicity agents—if they are going to keep on paying athletes to do the job (and why not pay them, it's work)—if there is no hope of going back to the days of Mount Olympus—come out and play the game on even terms.

It is suggested that the proposal at the meeting today will be to allow a limit of $50 a month to athletes. And take it from this writer: Texas will have a very active part at the meeting.

UPHEAVAL

The news story The Daily Texan published Wednesday morning quoting Jimmie Brinkley on the Athletic Council's vote against recommending Jack Chevigny caused one of the greatest upheavals in the athletic history of the University.

At the Assembly meeting Thursday night there were several remarks cast at the Texan reporters who broke the story. It was said that if one wanted to hide a secret he would not go to journalists to do it. It has been said that the reporters to whom Brinkley told about the vote and the hiring proposition of Dana X. Bible did not keep their confidence. May we point out that there is a grave misunderstanding about confidences, ethics, and secrets.

TWO PLUS TWO

Stanley Gunn requests that this be made clear: Brinkley offered to bet him $5 Tuesday morning in the news room of the Texan that Bible would be the next coach here. That was enough for a story—a good story. Brinkley did not swear Gunn to secrecy. Brinkley was a member of the Council. The Council had met the night before. Put two and two together.

Gunn wrote a news story quoting Brinkley on what he had said and headed for the telegraph office—to his Hearst paper. In the meantime Brinkley confided in two other reporters the rest of the facts—they promised secrecy. But Gunn said his story was legitimate and he was going to telegraph it. The others went to Brinkley, went to Dr. Dolley and said that the cat was out. Did Brinkley want himself quoted as giving the name of the next coach?

Gentlemen, if any one believes the news story reprinted below—which was on its way to the San Antonio Light had the Wednesday Texan story not been used—would have done the Athletic Council less harm than the whole story of what

Yesterday afternoon they practiced intensively on tip-off plays and offense work, trying to be prepared for the Bobcat team which promises stiff competition for the untired Longhorns.

The traveling squad, as announced by Gray yesterday, will be made up of Willie Tate, Jack Collins, captain of the basketeers, Joe Roach, Don White, Buddy Perlman, Bill Baxter, Henry Clifton, Ned Sweeney, Henry Chovane, Arthur Moers, Warren Osborne, Hal Snyder, Gray, Kelly, trainer, and Ed Slavik.

Although Gray has not yet decided on his starting line-up for tonight's game, it will probably be the following:

AUSTIN, Dec. 10—Dana X. Bible of Nebraska was predicted as the next University of Texas football coach here today by a member of the Athletic Council.

James Brinkley, Houston, student delegate to the Council, declared this morning that he believed Jack Chevigny would not be back in 1937. He further stated that Bible would replace him.

Brinkley, also president of the Students' Association, refused to clarify his statement further but insisted that Bible would replace Chevigny as Texas mentor. Challenged as to the likelihood of the assertion, Brinkley offered to back up his belief with $5 bets.

Golf Bawls.. fore all

Local interest is now centered at the Municipal Golf Course, with Tom Penick as head manager of all contests.

The greatest tournament of city importance to be held there this week is the Central Texas Invitation which has its final date of qualification set for Sunday, December 13. Every golfer of note will be represented, it is believed. Throughout the last few days 54 players have entered, and at least 30 more are expected.

Interesting to observe: Tom Penick seems to make a go of his tournaments, good luck or bad.

The Austin American Four Man Team tournament, another annual affair, ends a week of fairly successful play Sunday, December 13. Possibly the most witnessed foursome of the day will be that of Chester Sherman, Tommy Thompson, Lewis Burr, and Morris Williams who fight for press honors. At the last news, Weldon Hart, coach and captain, will be on hand offering suggestions to his pupils.

In public answer to a printed solicitation, your commentator types for Morris Williams of the American-Statesman clan:

Honored, Mr. Williams, we WILL organize a team of Texas golfers to compete in the Austin newspaper tournament—and against pressmen of the American-Statesman offices, Sunday afternoon. Realizing that half of us has never swung around a links, we still hope to offer strong competition.

All and sundry agree.

Prentice David Hill, who has been in charge of sets for Curtain Club productions, will design scenes for "Green Grow the Lilies," to be presented by the Curtain Club in March. The locale of the play is the Indian Territory near Claremore, Okla.

Hill's grandfather lived in this locality when it was an Indian reservation, and was first governor of Oklahoma when it was admitted into the Union. The discussion of Oklahoma's joining the United States is brought into the dialogue of "Green Grow the Lilies."

Gridiron Heroes Of Former Days To See Action

Some of the greatest names in gridiron history will be included in the roster of the Austin All-Stars when this group of great stars of the past engage Frank Bridges' colorful and widely traveled St. Mary's Rattlers at Memorial Stadium this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The All-Stars can throw an array of players at the Rattlers which, if they had been incorporated under one banner at the same time, would have proved a nightmare for any team unlucky enough to face them.

Jack Chevigny and Ted Twomey, of Notre Dame and all-American fame, will be on hand. "Mule" Wilson, one of the most colorful athletes in the history of the southwest who used to batter Longhorn lines while he was with Texas A. & M., will also play. "Mule" was a professional football star for the championship Portsmouth Spartans for several years after he left college. Bohn Hilliard, possibly the greatest backfield man in Longhorn history, is scheduled to be at half-back post. The great variety of stars who will participate include Charley Zunker, Jim Tolbert, C. E. Perryman, "Potsy" Allen, Joe Grimes, Leo McDade, Ed Price, Standard Lambert, Sub Pylant, Jack Gray, Jimmy Hadlock, Moreland Chapman, Charley Coates, "Ox" Higgins, and Joe Smartt. Walton Launey, Clint Small, Irving Gilbreath, Bill Pittenger, Jay Arnold, Red Sheridan; all members of the 1936 Longhorn team, will also be on the squad.

The St. Mary's Rattlers, led by Dug Locke, called one of the greatest "little college" backs in the country, will be resplendent in their red, white, and blue "barber-pole" uniforms.

Frank Bridges, former coach of the Baylor Bears, has led his Rattlers over a widely-traveled course this season. On a western trip, 4,800 miles were covered, while on an eastern trip, 6,200 more were added to the "school bus" mileage.

One of the Rattlers' best games this year was turned in against the San Francisco Dons, when the Rattlers tied the highly-touted Dons, 6-6, after the Dons had been conceded victory.

Doug Locke, ace halfback, is the leading ground-gainer for the Rattlers. In 232 attempts this year he has gained 1,274 yards, an average of five and one-half yards per try.

The admission will be $1. officials have announced. Proceeds will be given to needy children through sponsorship of the Austin Lions Club.

Ted Twomey 'Won't Talk' To the Press

Ted Twomey, Longhorn line coach, is not talking.

Ted, former Notre Dame all-American who joined the University coaching staff this year coming from Kentucky, has been placed in the available-coaches-for-Texas show window by some sports writers.

"What do you think of the coaching situation on the campus?" he was asked.

Twomey clamped his fat jaws and shook his head, looking very Irish.

"Think you'd like to be Longhorn coach?"

Again the Irish face shook. "Aren't you even going to say 'no' to the press?" Twomey shook his head. Twomey is not talking.

actions to the people that elected him.

THE Irish Free State, which yesterday considered possibilities of not signing the abdication bill, introduced a bill into the Legislature which will strengthen Irish home rule. De Valera hastened to explain to the legislative body that the proposed constitutional changes do not represent severance of Ireland's connections with the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The new legislation abolished the King's name in all internal government activities and abolishes the post of Governor-General by delegating his duties to the speaker of the Dail. Some sort of legislation was necessary to approve the abdication of Edward and the accession of the Duke of York, and the Dail was asked to use this opportunity to make the changes desired by the government.

IN Geneva Foreign Minister Juho Alvarez del Vayo went before the League of Nations and accused the Germans and Italians of sending men into Spain to aid the Rebels. The League, in its already too well-known way, side stepped this issue and decided to

Frogs to Meet Santa Clara On Coast Today

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11—(INS)—The Horned Frogs of Texas Christian arrived here today for their inter-sectional tilt tomorrow with the Santa Clara Broncos, the nation's only major eleven with a perfect record.

The Broncos have been established as 10 to 6 favorites. "Even money" is being wagered the Texans lose by 7 points. Lawrence (Buck) Shaw, coach of the Broncos, predicted his boys will move to the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day still undefeated and untied.

"If my boys perform tomorrow like they have in practice all week, their perfect record will remain intact. And I think they'll play that way," Shaw said.

Shaw disclosed he had just received word that L.S.U., their Sugar Bowl opponent, has been established a 3-2 favorite for the New Year's Day game.

consider the whole dangerous question in its regular session January 17. By that time we may predict that the League will no longer have to consider the question of whether foreign intervention in Spain is ethical or proper, but will have the more important question of considering whether it will recognize a new government in Spain. Thus day after day the League becomes less able to cope with the serious problems that confront Europe. Its work will soon be substituted by all kinds of agreements made by the more important nations, and these agreements will no longer be agreements of peace but contracts of war and aggression.

IN Buenos Aires the Inter-American Conference for the maintenance of peace has been day by day drafting new plans which will ultimately result in better trade conditions for all nations concerned as well as peace on this continent. During the last few days our Secretary of State, Mr. Hull, has found strong opposition to the adoption of his plans in Mr. Saavedra Lamas, the present Minister of Foreign Affairs of Argentina.

Radio Ramblings

KNOW, Austin's only radio station, really should be called The University of Texas radio station. Did you know (no pun intended) that over 95 per cent of the staff are either former or present University students? The announcers, an engineer, the salesmen, the manager, and the continuity writer have all studied at the Forty Acres. And not only that, but most of the talent is also recruited from these ranks.

remedied by round-table discussion.

The delegates were luncheon guests Friday of President H. Y. Benedict at the Home Economics Tea Room.

The third day of the convention, which will be concluded Sunday morning, was possibly the lightest in the matter of work. The delegates had a few minutes of unoccupied time, and many of them played ping pong or used other facilities of the host Union.

No student meeting was held, but the final separate meeting of the twenty-one student delegates will be held this morning. The students attended a tea dance in the main ballroom of the Union as guests of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Barbecue Held

The final activity of the day's schedule was held at the Boy Scout Lodge in Zilker Park. A steak barbecue and saddle horses were awaiting the delegates. J. Frank Dobie, author of several novels concerning the Southwest, told the convention a number of "Texas Tales."

The editor-in-chief of The Daily Texan is elected under the rules of the Students' Association to assume responsibility for all editorial opinions expressed in the paper, and is subject to the rules and regulations of the Handbook of Texas Student Publications, Inc., a private corporation chartered under the laws of the State of Texas and controlled jointly by the faculty and the student body of The University of Texas.

On July 27, 1936, a censor was placed on the Texan to examine prior to publication "all proposed non-advertising contents of each issue," and the censor's powers are set out in Section 36 of the Sixth Edition of the Rules and Regulations of the Board of Regents. Since that action, the opinions expressed in the editorial columns of the Texan are not necessarily the unmodified opinions of the students nor of the editor-in-chief.

Any reader disagreeing with the Texan's policies, as censored, is invited to submit articles to the open forum columns.

Campus Posse Intimidation Unfortunate and Unnecessary

"D'ya wanna fight?"

A gang of neighborhood youngsters confront a considerably smaller boy who had said he didn't like their hero.

"Not much. But whatcha gonna do about it?"

"You just step across this line. We dare you." A line is defined, but the smaller boy heads away from it.

Leader of the band swings at the smaller boy, who retreats to a safe distance.

"Sissy . . . coward . . . fibber . . . sneak!" taunt the members of the gang as they back off.

The attempt on the part of a group of football players at active reprisal against one man for his actions in a matter touching them is reminiscent of back alley feuds and name-calling contests when we were eight or ten years old. The relatively civilized maturity of University students should suggest better means to settle an argument.

Whatever view one takes as to the right or wrong of a student official's action and its results, fighting and coercion by mass threat can accomplish little more than some degree of personal satisfaction. In its final estimation, both the means and the end are undesirable on a modern college campus.

Whether one considers the political views, the motives or the course of action taken by a student official, consideration and respect must be granted the position which he represents. In the upshot his views will not be clarified by a broken jaw, his motives will remain his own in spite of threats, and judgment of his course of action can be corrected by vested authority.

That a group of football players went to "get" a man is, moreover, a comparative indictment against their conception of sportsmanship and fair play. In theory at least, that same group should adhere as athletes to sound good sportsmanship. From the disinterested angle alone—that outside the University campus—the disciplining incident can only lessen the respect of the football follower for the theoretical traditions of the sport.

The odds in such a case could be considered hardly equal; a sensible man would avoid them. A sensible man would overlook the threats. And a sensible man can not avoid considering the whole affair childish, unsportsmanlike and pointless. Excess energy and desire for action can be utilized to better advantage on the gridiron.

Why not get back in some degree to fundamentals? Name calling and posse-forming for the purpose of intimidation will not label the University student as mature or responsible enough for respect.

As soon as the student body is able to view itself as a student body—one concerted group—and not a mass of single entities with cross purposes, personal aims and ends, that soon will the student body find itself in a position to command respect.

That soon will the student body be in a position to demand and receive responsibility.

And I'm bound to be right, too, because you can go to one of their stampede meetings, and it isn't 3 minutes before the vice-president tries to horn the old bull president out of his place at the head of the herd. And right off, the old bull humps his back and rattles his hocks around to meet the opposition. Then a couple of others take to snorting and shaking their heads at each other over which of the two old bulls is the saltiest, and directly the whole herd is split wide open and has taken sides and backed off and is ready to lock horns.

And there's hell to pay from then on!

A fighting bunch, that Assembly. A mighty hard-fighting bunch.

But they do all their fighting among themselves! That is, most of it.

They're a problem, a mighty big problem.

And at first I thought just to annihilate them altogether. But I'm getting to wonder here lately. Looks like there ought to be some good somewhere in an outfit that can show that much fight.

For instance, just taking what's called a hypothetical case, one that doesn't show much signs of ever happening—What if all this battling spirit could be concentrated into one force and lined up with me and my opus and turned loose on the evils of this world.

Wouldn't we have a howling crusade then?

There'd be no stopping it. Why, every evil in the country—big ones, little ones, ugly ones, and pretty ones, and the ghosts of all the ones that had played out and died—would turn tail and take to their heels like a bunch of coyotes when a mountain lion shows up.

It just tickles me to think how fast I could bring a Utopia about if I had the help of a fighting bunch like that Assembly.

And they do do some good every once in awhile. Look how they took to that Texan censorship problem Thursday night. Adopted that re-organization plan right off.

Then, right away, they had to bust up and start wrangling again.

But, of course, I guess it's foolish for a man to expect them to change their natures too quick. They're too touchy and quick-tempered to change right off. Maybe if they're give a little time, though, and sort of coaxed along the good in them will out.

If it's not already out and gone.

SUBJECT CHANGED

The subject of the panel discussion of the Austin Open Forum for Thursday, December 17, has been changed from "County Home Rule in Texas" to "Social Security Act," Dr. W. E. Gettys, president of the Forum, announced Friday.

One Thing and Then Another

By FRED GIPSON

Much as I hate to admit it, there really must be some good in the Students' Assembly. Some potential good anyway—else it wouldn't be so hard to squelch, beat down, and otherwise put in its place.

You never saw a tougher bunch, not even out in the backwoods thickets, where white mule ages in gasoline cans and women protect their honor with shotguns and pole axes or just whatever happens to be handy. Hard—That's what that Assembly group is. They can stand the gaff.

You'd think, what with the way this opus of mine slapped them down a couple of weeks ago, they'd all have taken to the brush and stayed hid out. But no, here they are, right out in the opening again, all reared back on their dew claws, pawing the sand and lifting it up on their withers with their fore feet, and bellowing and raising Cain no end.

You never saw the like. The way I figure it, the main reason they're so tough is because they're such a throat-cutting gang and are so used to swapping kicks and knocks and buttings and flank-horning with each other that they're just sort of hardened to punishment and like more of it, and worse, just for variety.

That's the way I figure the situation.

And I'm bound to be right, too, because you can go to one of their stampede meetings, and it isn't 3 minutes before the vice-president tries to horn the old bull president out of his place at the head of the herd. And right off, the old bull humps his back and rattles his hocks around to meet the opposition. The director of the S.M.U. Mustang band received a postal card saying, "Dear Sir: Please send me a trial bottle of Peruna. Respectively, Mrs. S. K.," Middle River, Minn.

Which, in a way, proves that publicity helps.

And it is interesting to notice that the T.C.U. band received the vote of the WBAP and WFAA technicians for the best band in the Southwest Conference, which includes The University of Texas.

"And," says Jack Guinn, "I'd do most anything you ask, Most any simple little task To prove to you that my love's true. I'd even die, you know full well— If I could be ALONE in hell."

Incidentally, Jack does not pay us for the publicity . . . and he actually writes the poetry . . . and draws perty pitchers . . .

The Texas campus is not the only one to have its "dog" troubles. "Lady," a black and white foxhound, on the verge of having pups, walked into the Washington University clinic and wagged her tail for recognition. A few days later "Lady," attended by nurses and internes, gave birth to six puppies.

This is the advice of women of Boston University for the men who want a second date—we presume with the same girl:

Don't pun all the time.
Don't wear red neckties and don't go without garters.

Don't eat onions, chew gum, or drink when out on a date.
Don't ask a gal to spend any money.

The University Daily Kansan is fighting the football coach. Can you imagine such ingratitude? Anyway, when the varsity team tangled (apologies to Joe Belden, et al, for the use of that word

"tangled") with the freshman team and tied the poor fish 0-0, the Kansan ran a banner headline, "Kansas Wins! 0-0." In a very biased story, satirizing both the coach and the varsity team, the sports editor wrote a summary of the game. "In this game, as in all others this season, the varsity used its own self-styled method of tackling—that of pushing its opponents down."
