The Policy Institute at King's

The Policy Institute addresses complex policy and practice challenges with rigorous research, academic expertise and analysis focused on improving outcomes. Our vision is to contribute to building an ecosystem that enables the translation of research to inform policy and practice, and the translation of policy and practice needs into a demand-focussed research culture. We do this by bringing diverse groups together, facilitating engagement between academic, business, philanthropic, clinical and policy communities around current and future societal issues.

The Social Care Workforce Research Unit

The Social Care Workforce Research Unit (SCWRU) at King's College London is funded by the NIHR Policy Research Programme and a range of other funders. It undertakes research on adult social care and its interfaces with housing and health sectors and complex challenges facing contemporary societies.

The Homelessness Research Programme is based within SCWRU.

Its aims are:

- ♦ To contribute to theory development, by exploring the causes of homelessness, and transitions into, through and out of homelessness.
- ♦ To understand better the problems and needs of people who are or have been homeless, and the effectiveness of services for disadvantaged and socially excluded groups.
- ♦ To influence policy and practice development regarding the prevention and alleviation of homelessness, and the improvement of services for people who are or have been homeless.

Acknowledgements

We send many thanks to the primary health care services across England that provided information about their service, and to those who completed a template and agreed for this to be included in the inventory.

We are also extremely grateful to the many homelessness organisations that participated in the survey about their services and experiences of accessing primary health care for their clients. This included senior managers who encouraged their staff to participate and coordinated responses within their organisation, and hostel and day centre staff that completed the questionnaires.

Special thanks are sent to Homeless Link which provided databases of accommodation and day centres services in England for single people who are homeless. These were very useful as a starting point for the survey of homelessness services. Thanks are also sent to Gordon Chaston, Xanthe Noble and Victoria O'Dwyer who have advised and assisted with the study. We also appreciate the help given by Ruby Fernandez-Fu with the mapping exercise.

The research team appreciate the guidance and advice provided by members of the Study Steering Committee: Jennifer Beecham, PSSRU, University of Kent; Caroline Bernard, Homeless Link; Andrew Casey, St Mungo's; Liddy Goyder, SchARR, University of Sheffield; Mohammed Ismail, Analytical Research Ltd; Gill Leng, Homelessness and Health Consultant, and formerly National Advisor to Public Health England; Jeremy Porteus, Housing, Learning and Improvement Network; Rebecca Rosen, Nuffield Trust; Sara Shaw, Nuffield Department of Primary Health Care Services, University of Oxford.

Special thanks are sent to Nigel Hewett, Medical Director, Pathway, and Secretary to the Faculty for Homeless and Inclusion Health, for reviewing the report and providing a response to the study findings at the launch of the report in February 2018. We also greatly appreciate the input of the following at the launch event: Jane Cook, Clinical Nurse Lead, London Homeless Health Programme; Rick Henderson, Chief Executive, Homeless Link; and Gill Leng (see above).

We also appreciate the help and support given by Sarah Rawlings, George Murkin and Archie Drake of the Policy Institute at King's College London, with the production of this report and the dissemination of findings.

The study is funded by the NIHR Health Services and Delivery Research Programme (Reference 13/156/03 – Delivering primary health care to homeless people: an evaluation of the integration, effectiveness and costs of different models). The study has received support from NIHR Clinical Research Network Teams.

Disclaimer

The views expressed in this inventory are those of the authors and the managers of the specialist primary health care services, and not necessarily those of the NHS, the NIHR or the Department of Health.

Introduction

This inventory is an accompaniment to the report *Mapping of Specialist Primary Health Care Services in England for People who are Homeless*. The report presents the findings of a systematic mapping exercise across England of specialist primary health care services for single people who are homeless (hereafter specialist primary health care services).

The mapping exercise was part of a larger study that is in progress which is examining the integration, effectiveness and cost-effectiveness of different models of delivering primary health care to people who are homeless (HEARTH study).<sup>1</sup> The study is funded by the Health Services and Delivery Research Programme of the National Institute for Health Research, and is being conducted at the Social Care Workforce Research Unit, within the Policy Institute at King's College London, and at the University of Surrey.

The overall aim of the mapping exercise was to identify the availability and types of specialist primary health care services across England, and thus inform the selection of case study sites for the HEARTH study. Specialist primary health care services were defined as those that: (i) worked primarily with single people who were homeless; or (ii) served the general population but provided enhanced or targeted services to single people who were homeless. The survey did not include GP practices that registered and provided general medical services to people who were homeless, but did not have targeted or additional services or clinics for them. It also did not include specialist health services for people who were homeless that did not offer general medical care, but focused on mental health, problematic drug or alcohol use, TB or sexual health. Further details of the objectives and methods of the mapping exercise are described in the report.

The specialist primary health care services were classified into six models or groups, plus some additional services (see report for details). Most fitted into one of three categories – (i) specialist health centres that worked primarily with homeless people, and possibly other groups of people who were marginalised; (ii) GP practices that served the general population but also provided 'enhanced' or targeted services to people who are homeless, such as clinics in a hostel (hereafter GP practices with homeless services); and (iii) mobile homeless health teams that ran clinics in several hostels and day centres for people who are homeless.

This inventory consists of 77 templates of specialist primary health care services which were identified in the mapping exercise and agreed to be included. Each template provides brief details of the service and its work with people who are homeless. The templates were firstly completed as far as possible by the research team using information that was already in the public domain or had been provided by the specialist primary health care service, and then each service manager was asked to check the template and provide additional information.

Website	www.brownlowhealth.co.uk
Special / enhanced services for homeless people
When started	Approximately 10 years ago
Features of the service	Provides an enhanced service for homeless people in Liverpool. The service has two general nurses, an alcohol specialised nurse, a GP, and also a shared care drug worker. Their assertive outreach approach allows the team to cover 12 hostels for homeless people and also the streets of Liverpool, and undertake blood virus screening, general health observations, inoculations, and health promotion. The team also ensures that homeless people are registered with local general practices. The team has very close links with Liverpool City statutory services, and with the voluntary sector to address the health and social needs of the homeless population. Once a week the practice closes its doors to the general population, and concentrates on providing services specifically for homeless people. During this period, secondary care consultants often visit to address specialised needs such as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and diabetes, and organisations such as Crisis and Citizens Advice provide advisory services.

Website	www.nems.org.uk
Special / enhanced services for homeless people
When started	February 2010
Features of the service	High numbers of patients from hard-to-reach groups are registered with the practice. This includes people who are transient, vulnerable, homeless, seeking asylum, have poor mental health, or multiple illnesses and social needs. Homeless people are able to use the practice address to register. Many homeless people from local hostels are registered. The practice extended its original boundary and people can remain registered if they move to neighbouring county boroughs. The practice is proactive in engaging with patients who are reluctant to attend the surgery, hospital appointments or community clinics. For example, they work with support workers to facilitate patients' attendance, and have flexible systems for homeless patients or those living in caravans or boats to collect prescriptions, letters or details of hospital appointments from the surgery. The practice provides a transport service to patients who struggle to attend appointments. Several appointments are held each day to accommodate urgent requests from patients who have chaotic lifestyles and struggle to cope with an appointment system. Also have a flexible approach if such patients are late for appointments – they would still be seen and attended to. Holds a nurse drop in clinic on a daily basis from 10.00 – 12.00 Monday to Friday. This is for all registered patients with acute illness or minor injury. Works closely with the local Homeless Health Team, and an information sharing agreement is in place with the team for sharing concerns about a patient. If the practice needs to see a patient, they would ask the team to get in touch with the person.

Voluntary service for homeless people
When started	2014 (prior to this the service had been provided by other GPs from different practices, starting around 2009)
Features of the service	Homeless people can register at the practice either using the address of the practice or that of a day centre. Clear plans are maintained which document how and when the patient can be contacted. A practice GP runs a fortnightly voluntary outreach clinic at the local day centre for homeless people. The GP does not prescribe at the day centre, and will see patients who are not registered, or who are registered with a different practice (notes are forwarded to the practice). The service provided may be signposting, examination, advice, or just a chat for people who are less able to engage with primary care. It is unusual to do more than this, though on rare occasions patients have been admitted to hospital from the centre. The day centre staff may discuss concerns they have about their clients. There is also a sexual health outreach clinic at the day centre run by the local genitourinary service The practice provides additional help to homeless people as required. For example, the practice had previously supported a homeless patient with the administration of their medicines for a period of six months. The patient collected their medication daily from the practice.
